
Resources for Community-Engaged Scholarship at Duke

Community-Engaged Scholarship Collaborative

Mission: The Community-Engaged Scholarship Collaborative aims to continue cultivating a community of practice among faculty, students, staff and community partners by bringing together, working with and building on many existing initiatives and sources of support for engagement at Duke University. The Collaborative provides space to learn, share and actively apply concepts and insights reflecting best practices for community-engaged scholarship.

Funding Opportunities:

- Fellowship: This program is for Duke faculty, staff and community partners who are interested in furthering their community-engaged scholarship
- Small Grant: Small Grant Funds are available to Duke faculty, staff and community partners working collaboratively on a community-engaged scholarship project. These funds can be used to develop, enhance, expand or sustain an existing community-engaged scholarship initiative.

Programming: Lunch & Learn Presentations, Workshops, Spring Symposium

<https://community.duke.edu/learning/engaged-scholarship-collaborative/>

COMMUNITY-ENGAGED SCHOLARSHIP
COLLABORATIVE

Duke Clinical and Translational Science Institute

Community Engaged Research Initiative (CERI) –

Promotes community-engaged research by cultivating research-community stakeholder partnerships, enhancing capacity to conduct stakeholder-engaged research, and fostering trust and transparency in research via improved knowledge, information sharing, and power sharing.

Aim 1: Provide programs and tools to enable community engaged research and spur collaborations and innovation

Aim 2: Enhance local, regional and national capacity for community engaged research

Aim 3: Improve knowledge and information sharing to foster trust and transparency in research

CONTACT: ceri@duke.edu

<https://ctsi.duke.edu/what-we-do/community-engagement>

Major Activities –

- AMEZ Health Equity Advocates & Liaisons
- Community Consultation Studios
- Sparks Innovation Studios
- Population Health Improvement Awards
- CEnR eLibrary:
<https://guides.mclibrary.duke.edu/CEnR/cec>
- Community Hubs
 - AACT+
 - Latin 19
 - Aging Well Durham
- Consultations
- NCCU partners
 - Ethnodramas
 - Mind Body Spirit (MBS program)
 - Community Tours
- CE Training and Education Program (New)

DukeEngage

DukeEngage

Challenge yourself. Change your world.

Mission: Through DukeEngage, students and faculty collaborate with communities – locally and globally – to address critical social issues through an immersive summer of community engagement.

Offers 20 group programs with themes ranging from education, environment, conservation, and public policy

Website: <https://dukeengage.duke.edu/>

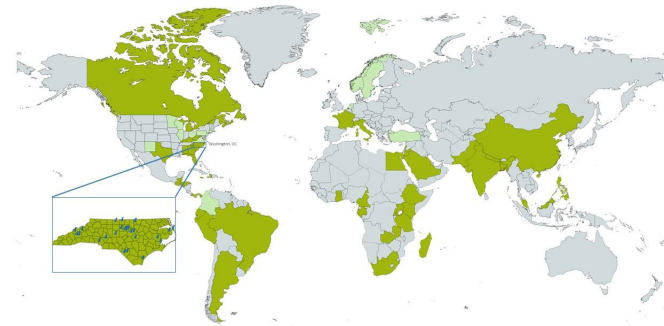

Email: dukeengage@duke.edu

Bass Connections

Bass Connections supports team-based research and courses that engage faculty, undergraduates, and graduate students in the interdisciplinary exploration of big, unanswered questions about major societal challenges.

- Programs & Resources:
 - Year-long project teams
 - Summer Programs: Story+, Data+
 - Student Research Awards
 - Collaborative Project Courses; Resource Center; Faculty Fellows Program; Collaborative Project Expeditions

Usually, it's an institution hiring people to come in and do this work, and I don't know about the success of that. With this, because it's embedded within the community and has full community participation, I think that is really going to be what makes the difference. –Wanda Boone, Founder of Together for Resilient Youth (Community partner for Bass Connections Coping Together Project)

bassconnections.duke.edu | bassconnections@duke.edu

Mission:

- ❖ Prepare global health leaders through world-leading interdisciplinary education
- ❖ Seek innovative solutions to the world's pressing global health challenges by conducting research, designing policies and implementing evidence-based interventions
- ❖ Partner for change by engaging international and local organizations in locally grounded, collaborative projects

Guiding Values:

- Collaboration
- Diversity and inclusion
- Commitment to impact
- Humility
- Compassion
- Respect
- Cultural sensitivity

We seek to achieve health equity globally and transnationally by partnering with others on work that addresses disparities, inequities, and the root causes of health risks and outcomes

<https://globalhealth.duke.edu>

Sumi.ariely@duke.edu

- Education programs and community-engaged GH experiential learning grants for undergraduate, graduate and professional students
 - UG Major/minor
 - MSGH degree
 - Graduate GH certificate
 - Doctoral Scholars Program
 - SOM Third year study program and GH Pathway Fellows program
- Consultation and support for collaborative research, policy, intervention, and educational work between Duke faculty and students, international and local institutes of learning, and CBOs
 - Research projects and research program development
 - Joint curricular development and training
 - Internship and practice based projects
 - local-is-global multi-directional learning
- GH funding support and consultation for
 - Duke affiliated GH basic and applied research
 - Visiting Scholars engagement, local and international
 - Travel and new partnership development
 - CBOs seeking to collaborate on GH projects
 - Development of joint community-engaged collaborations on GH topics with units across Duke

Faculty Write

The Duke Faculty Write Program aims to advance faculty writing and cultivate community through workshops, retreats, writing groups, and consultations.

Community Engaged Scholarship Resources

- North Carolina Engaged Scholar Writing Retreats (October and March)
- Workshops: Publishing Engaged Scholarship; Making Space for Engaged Scholarship
- How I Write interview series with NC Engaged Scholars
- Writing groups

facultywrite.duke.edu

Contact: Jennifer Ahern-Dodson | jahern@duke.edu

Forum for Scholars & Publics

FORUM for
SCHOLARS and PUBLICS
AT DUKE UNIVERSITY

- We are a hub for intellectual exchange, particularly in the arts and humanities.
- We facilitate public scholarship and promote community partnerships at Duke and beyond.
- We provide financial and logistical support for faculty, staff, and students to develop and implement creative public-facing programs.
- We serve as a connecting point for people looking for resources and for partners.
- We hold workshops to address concerns about ethical and responsible public engagement.

<https://fsp.duke.edu/> | Lou Brown: lou.brown@duke.edu

Mission: To catalyze pioneering social science research and methods and their broad application by:

- ❑ Developing and populating a 21st century social science data infrastructure that facilitates collaboration, empowers researchers to ask new questions, and addresses confidentiality and privacy concerns surrounding sensitive and protected data.
- ❑ Providing support across the full range of social science methods to researchers and teams at all levels.
- ❑ Facilitating cross-disciplinary connections between researchers interested in significant social problems and, where appropriate, supporting student and external engagement in these connections.
- ❑ Incubating new cross-disciplinary collaborations that confront important social problems, and assisting in scaling such collaborations while connecting them, when appropriate, to external support.

Resources:

- Consultation on community-engaged research, evaluation, research design, data collection, and analysis to university-affiliated individuals and community-based entities
- Selected workshops / training on community-engaged research, evaluation, research design, data collection, and analysis
- Evaluation and applied research project partnerships with Duke-affiliated individuals and for community-based entities
- SSRI-affiliated Masters in Interdisciplinary Data Science opportunities such as student capstone project partnership
- Added potential opportunities through SSRI's additional affiliates and programs

Website: <https://ssri.duke.edu/> | Email: ssri-aree@duke.edu or ssri@duke.edu

Duke Service-Learning

Duke Service-Learning connects academic curriculum to communities to foster enriched learning and engagement in ethical collaborations. We provide consultation, training, research, and advocacy for the work of faculty, staff, students, and communities to support academic programming that joins communities in promoting social equity and social change.

Community-Engaged Scholarship Resources:

- Faculty consultants and community of practice
- SLCE label
- Course development grants
- Service-Learning Assistants

Website: servicelearning.duke.edu | Email: servicelearning@duke.edu